The Washington State Women’s Commission is partnering with the Washington State Commission on Asian Pacific American Affairs for a community conversation on Asian American women’s history

OLYMPIA, Wa. – As we continue to celebrate Women’s History Month, the Washington State Women’s Commission is partnering with the Washington State Commission on Asian Pacific American Affairs for a community conversation on Asian American women’s history.

Set for March 29 from 4-4:30 p.m., the event will feature Asian American members of both organizations to share a conversation about their experiences as Asian American women leaders, and a broader discussion on the history of Asian American women in this country.

Grace Huang, the policy director for Asian Pacific Institute on Gender-Based Violence, Rituja Indapure, manager, ecommerce fulfillment at Costco, and Toshiko Grace Hasegawa, the Executive Director for the Washington State Commission on Asian Pacific American Affairs, will be featured on the panel.

This event is free and open for the public to attend. No RSVP is necessary. The community conversation will be held remotely via Zoom video conference: wswc.wa.gov/asian-american-women’s-history-community-conversation. A dial-in option will also be available for those who are unable to access the meeting electronically.

Members of the media are welcome to participate in this event. To schedule additional interviews with the panelists, please contact KD Hall via email: kela@kdhall.com
